About the course

Rambert School's Junior Summer Course is a chance for dancers aged 11-14 years to experience high-quality dance training as well as developing performance and creative skills. Designed as an opportunity for exploring ballet and contemporary techniques within a nurturing and supportive environment, the course will be held at Rambert School's world-class purpose-built facilities in Southwest London and led by Rambert School faculty, alumni, and associated artists. This is a great opportunity to expand dance experience by delving further into both ballet and contemporary dance.

Students will take daily ballet and contemporary technique classes, complimented by sessions in ballet repertoire, conditioning and creative work, underpinning the School's 50/50 focus on ballet and contemporary.

Faculty

Classes will be led by Rambert School faculty and alumni as well as guest teachers, with technique classes accompanied by live musicians.
